How to Use the Content Advisor

Internet Explorer Content Advisor allows you to control the content your computer can access over the Internet. After enabling Content Advisor, only sites that meet your established criteria can be displayed.

1. In the Windows Taskbar, select Start. From options on the right, select Settings. Then, select Control Panel.

2. In Control Panel, double-click on Internet Options to display the Internet Properties form.

3. On the Internet Properties form, select the Content tab.

4. Select Enable to display the Content Advisor form. (If you've already enabled Content Advisor, select Settings. Then, type the supervisor password. The Content Advisor form will display.)

5. Select a category in the list, then drag the slider to set the limits. Repeat this process for each category you want to limit. Then, select OK.

6. If a supervisor password has not already been set up, you'll be prompted to create one.

7. To view restricted content, select the General tab in the Content Advisor form. Then select Supervisor Can Type A Password To Allow Users To View Restricted Content.

8. To view unrated content: Select Users Can See Sites That Have No Rating. Select OK.

Note: Not all Internet content is rated. If you choose to allow viewing of unrated sites on your computer, some sites could contain inappropriate material. To learn more about site ratings, visit the Microsoft® Web site (www.microsoft.com).
